What MediScan AI Builds

MediScan AI develops vertical AI software that turns large, unstructured medical record packets into organized case reviews for medical evaluators, attorneys, and insurance reviewers. On its official website, the platform allows users to drag and drop thousands of PDFs at once—including both typed records and scans of handwritten clinical notes—and convert them into structured medical chronologies, medical summaries, and narrative summaries.

MediScan emphasizes direct document processing without unseen human quality-assurance reviewers. Each generated summary stays linked side by side to the original medical record pages so reviewers can verify dates, clinical findings, and source text, edit entries, detect duplicate documents, apply custom review templates, and query case files through an AI case agent called MediChat.

Washington Footprint and Leadership

MediScan AI was founded in Seattle in 2024 and operates with a U.S.-based workforce. In June 27, 2025 coverage, GeekWire reported that the startup employed eight people and anchored 2,000 square feet of office space on the second floor of Foundations, a Seattle community workspace for technology startup founders.

The company was co-founded by CEO Kavian Mojabe and COO Sean Podvent. According to mediscan.ai/about-us and GeekWire, Mojabe previously worked as a software engineer at Amazon, led product integrations at INLT (acquired by Amazon), and built core infrastructure at Scenery (acquired by Adobe); he was motivated to start MediScan after observing medical-evaluation paperwork bottlenecks around his father's chiropractic office. Podvent previously co-developed patient-experience app Rocket Rounding and founded health-tech company Hygiene IQ (acquired by SC Johnson). MediScan's About page also lists five additional engineering and commercial staff—Aaron Lehman, Robert Evans, Ezekiel John, Evan Knecht, and Kyria Albanes—while Mojabe was named a finalist for Young Entrepreneur of the Year at the 2026 GeekWire Awards in May 2026.

Products, Users, and Public Traction

MediScan AI sits at the intersection of medicine, insurance, and law, serving four stated user groups: Qualified Medical Evaluators (QMEs) and Independent Medical Examiners (IMEs), physician management companies, med-legal attorneys (personal injury and medical malpractice), and insurers and third-party administrators (TPAs). Unlike many early-stage vertical AI companies, MediScan publishes transparent self-serve pricing on mediscan.ai/pricing alongside a 15-day free trial.

In GeekWire's June 27, 2025 report, MediScan stated it had signed close to 100 deals since launching paid plans in June 2024 and that physician-evaluators had collectively processed more than 14,000 cases through the platform. Mojabe also told GeekWire that roughly 20% of its user base consisted of personal injury and malpractice lawyers who adopted the platform alongside medical evaluators. Individual customer organization names are not publicly disclosed.

Funding, Stage, and Place in Washington's AI Landscape

MediScan AI announced a $1.4 million seed round on June 27, 2025, led by Tidal Ventures, according to GeekWire. At the time of the announcement, the company said the capital would fund product development and expansion across its engineering and sales teams. No subsequent funding round has been publicly announced through November 2026.

Within Seattle's healthcare AI cluster, MediScan AI illustrates a focused, revenue-first vertical workflow model: pairing published seat-and-page SaaS pricing with verifiable HIPAA and SOC 2 compliance in an administrative bottleneck—med-legal record review—where physicians and attorneys still depend on source-linked accuracy rather than autonomous clinical decisions.
